

Contents

Preface

Aspire for Higher	v
To Our Readers	vi

Prologue

Akira Yamada, Founder of Daikin Industries	1
--	---

Chapter I

Establishment of Osaka Kinzoku Kogyo Co. (1934–1972)

Establishment of Osaka Kinzoku Kogyo Co.	15
Toward Reopening of Plants after Chaotic Postwar Period	27
Acquisition of “Freon” Patent	33
Resumption of Business Ties with Sumitomo Metal Industries	39
Establishing Foundation for Air Conditioning Business	50
Evolution of Fluorine Chemical Technology, and Development of Overseas Markets	61

Chapter II

Oil Crisis and New Business (1972–1987)

Coping with Oil Crisis	73
Aiming for “Daikin, the Technology Company”	85
Diversification of Air Conditioning Business	93
Global Production of Air Conditioners	102
Construction of Rinkai Factory and Kashima Plant	106

Chapter III

Recovering from Managerial Crisis (1986–1994)

Establishing Managerial Principles and Daikin Management	117
Domestic Air Conditioning Business Turns Favorable, and Overseas Developments	127
Three Trials of Daikin's Chemical Business	141
Reduction of Working Hours, and Social Contributions	160

Chapter IV

Challenging Globalization (1994–2000)

Series of Reforms	169
Shift toward Emphasis on Strategy of Three Pillars of Air Conditioning Business	180
High-Cycle Production System and Development of “Ururu Sarara”	187
Leap Toward becoming Global Company in Air Conditioning Business	197
Global Strategy of Chemicals Division	206
Business Restructuring and Business Withdrawals	214
Corporate Social Responsibility and Improved Business Results	218

Chapter V

Becoming an Attractive Company (2000–2006)

Fusion 05: Aiming for True Blue-Chip Status	223
Noriyuki Inoue Assumes Chairmanship	229
Aggressive Expansion of Air Conditioning Business in Japan	237
Daikin Technology Statement and Production System for Changeable Models and Volumes	245
Transfer of Skills, and Development of New Products	251
Toward Building Eight-Polar Markets for Global Air Conditioning	256
Development of Strategy for Chinese Market	267
Aiming for World No. 2 Position in Fluorochemicals	275
Business Results and New Developments in Diversification	282
Corporate Ethics and Environmental Response	288

Chapter VI

Challenging New Heights (2006–2014)

Achieving Global No. 1 Position in Air Conditioning	301
New Developments in the Chinese Market	315
Bolstering Business Operations in Europe, the Mideast, and Africa	323
Bolstering of ASEAN Business	332
Buy Out of Goodman, and Third Attempt to Enter U.S. Market	343
Sophistication of Technical Developments	351
Reorganizing Chemical Business, and Challenging Global No. 1 Position	359
Changes in Japanese Market, and Reorganization of Business Structure	363
Response to Global Environmental Issues, and Pursuit of Diversity	371
Looking Toward Future	377

Appendices	383
Chronology	391
Index	405

The calligraphy is by Ishitobi Hakko.

Ishitobi was born in 1941. At the time of his entry to Tokyo Gakugei University, he also began to study under renowned Japanese calligrapher Otei Kaneko. Ishitobi has written many calligraphy books, including introductory guides and handbooks. His work is highly regarded for its modern style, which is easy to read and adapts familiar content.